Course Info:
Spring 2009
12:00-12:50 MW
Dewey 1101

This course provides students with the background and conceptual tools they need to understand contemporary international relations. The course will introduce students to the wide range of issues involved in the study of international relations including the workings of the state system, the causes of international conflict and violence, and international economic relations. Students will be introduced to the literature in a broad way, to make them familiar with the main theoretical traditions in the field. Students will be asked, as much as possible, to read original texts, rather than from a textbook. Time permitting, we will also examine topics of particular current interest such as the evolving nature of power in the post Cold War environment as well as special global challenges like nation-building and ongoing conflict(s) in the Middle East.

This course is organized around the metaphor of Chinese food. In the beginning, students will examine the basic ingredients of the study of international relations. We will consider the actors, goals, means, and consequences of state interaction — IR's soy sauce, ginger root, garlic, and MSG. The rest of the course is designed to give an overview of the breadth and scope of the wide-ranging field of international relations. Along the way, students will get a taste of follow-on courses they might choose to take in international security, international political economy, international law, American foreign policy, and so on.

Course Requirements

Participation in recitation (Friday 12:00-12:50, for most) comprises 30% of your grade; your teaching fellow has nearly absolute autonomy in determining the requirements and assessing how well or poorly you have met them.

A midterm exam counts for 30% of your grade, and a final exam counts for 40%. The final exam is given during the period scheduled by the University. The exam is not given early — check the schedule published by the University and make your holiday travel plans accordingly.

Academic Integrity

Be familiar with the University's policies on academic integrity and disciplinary action (<http://www.rochester.edu/College/honesty/students.html>). Violators of University regulations on academic integrity will be dealt with severely, which means that your grade will suffer, and I will forward your case to the Chair of the College Board on Academic Honesty.

Remember that the same technology that has made plagiarism easier to accomplish has also made it easier to detect. If you do not cite a source, it is plagiarism. If you do cite it, it is scholarship.

Texts

The following books are required:

Karen A. Mingst. (2008) Essentials of International Relations. W.W. Norton & Company, Fourth Edition; listed below as Mingst EIR.

Robert Art & Robert Jervis. (2007) International Politics: Enduring Concepts and Contemporary Issues. Addison-Wesley, Eighth Edition; listed below as Art IPECCI.

These books are optional:

Colin McEvedy, David Woodroffe. The New Penguin Atlas of Recent History: Europe Since 1815. Penguin, Reissue edition, 2003.

Dan Smith, The Penguin Atlas of War and Peace: Completely Revised and Updated. Penguin, Reissue edition, 2003

John L. Allen, Student Atlas of World Politics, Fourth Edition, New York: McGraw Hill, 2008

Readings not included in one of the texts can be found through one of the online databases. These readings are listed in the syllabus in italics. Compared to previous years, the reading load has been streamlined and it is expected that every student will do all the readings. That said, there is something of a priority in the readings. The articles from Art & Jervis and the other online articles are the most important and students should make every effort to master them. The Mingst book does not really function as a traditional textbook; it is not the primary reader. It is useful for providing background, especially for the initial part of the course on theory and concepts. Remember that on your exams both sets of readings are fair game. You have to know about the background and substance of International Relations to appreciate and weigh the usefulness of contending theories.

In addition, I expect students to read one of the following newspapers: the New York Times, the Washington Post, or the Financial Times, the Frankfurter Allgemeine, Die Zeit, Le Monde diplomatique or a comparable international paper.

27. REVIEW

I'm asking you all to play a game called Space Wars on Facebook. Since the game more or less requires that you invite other players to join your fleet, you may want to set up a "spoof" account, under a pseudonym on Facebook.

Facebook is at www.facebook.com, as I'm pretty sure most if not all of you know. You can join the Space War application at: <http://apps.facebook.com/spacewarsgame/>. You should definitely follow the main forum board. (You get there by clicking the Applications link on the left-hand bottom of your screen, then click 'edit' (top right-hand corner of the pop-up) then click 'about' in the Space Wars row.)

We may take one Friday to collectively act and take out the biggest or nastiest players in the game. If so, we will be Spaceforce 106 of the Ick. (To read the story of the Ick, and their power it's on the forum board.)

To grow more powerful, you'll need to make investments and get money, and expand your fleet. To expand your fleet, you need to invite friends. The easiest way may be to ask friends to become friends on Facebook, and then follow the 'fleet' link on your Space Wars home page, and then invite friends. My account is under the name Erich Wichmann. (Please do not reveal my identity!) I will obviously accept all invites. You can also use the mass-add post(s) on the forum.

There will be a bonus question on the exam about this game and how it does or does not compare to IR.
